

Krebs' Chronicle

January 23, 2009

Upcoming Events:

January 29 - Science Fair

Registration due

January 30 - No School

February 12 - 2nd Grade Music Program

February 16 - No School

Library Books Due:

February 3rd

Homework:

Reading Record Due Friday

Math Homework - pages 32 - 34

Money Homework - Due Feb. 6th

This Week In Math:

We are continuing our study of money. Many students need continued practice with counting coins. We are asking students to practice counting money as part of a longer term homework assignment. Please see the separate paper in your child's backpack.

This Week in Writing:

We are finishing up our Monster Poems this week. We will be displaying them in our room and invite you to stop by and read them any time.

This Week in Science:

We kicked off the science fair with an OMSI assembly today. I encourage all students to participate in the science fair, it is a fun educational experience.

This Week In Social Studies:

We have spent a lot of time talking about Black History this week. We began by reading a couple of age appropriate books on slavery and have since been talking about the Civil Rights movement and Martin Luther King. All of these studies have helped us to understand the historical significance of the inauguration which we watched together on Tuesday. We will continue our study of black history throughout February, which is black history month.

